

Legend about Treasurer

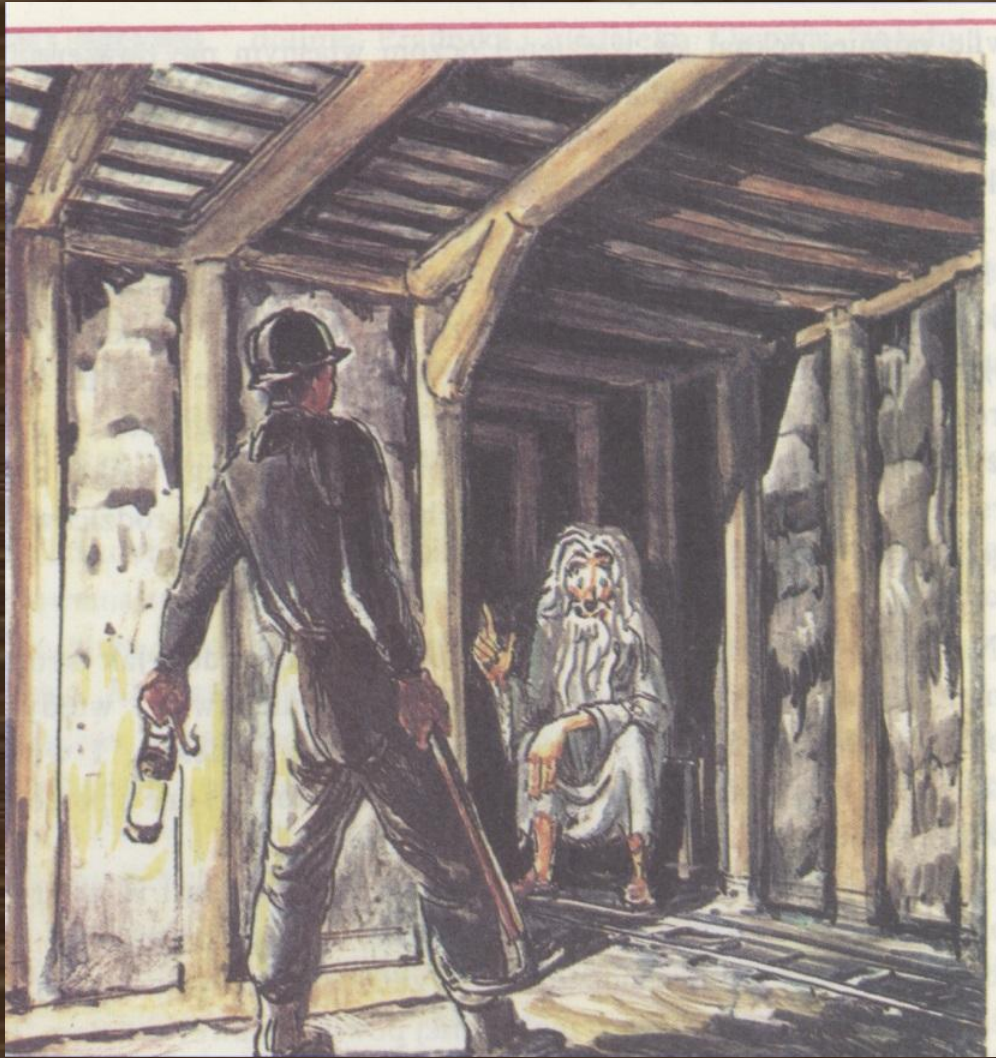

People in Silesia recounts each other the story a miner who met the Treasurer. The miner hadn't luck, because he didn't know how to say "no". So his mates have been using him. He always had to work in places where he had very hard work and where he couldn't find good carbon. It was painful for him and his family because he couldn't earn enough much money. Family was starving and his mood was worse every day. He knew that his hard work don't give him prosperity and luck. They raided it increasingly darker thoughts, perhaps such that you will never leave of mine ... But he didn't know that someone is watching him since long time.

Once he had to work in place where he couldn't even straighten up himself. He didn't know what he have to do and he started cry. Then the Treasurer decided that he has to help him, although he didn't like showing up to people.

-Why are you crying?- asked Treasurer

Miner doesn't afraid, but he knew that this is not a good sign (all miners knew). The Treasurer looked like nice old man with grey beard. Miner told him everything about his situation. The Treasurer calmly listened to complaints of a poor man, and told him to turn around and hammered into the wall. Miner was confused but he did that. He knew that many times was doing that and there wasn't a lot carbon.

He was shocked when he found most expensive carbon. He and his mates couldn't believe when he showed them the carbon. Some rubbed their eyes in amazement, and more than one realized that this could happen only with the help of the Treasurer. It was first time when miner came home with smile on his face, because he got a lot of money.

On the way he met an old man who reminded him of someone ... He realized that it alone its great benefactor - Treasurer. He immediately offered him a greater share of the money. He wanted in this way to repay for the help he received from him. Treasurer appreciated the generosity of a miner, he saw that the money earned doesn't make him greedy, so he told him to stop and henceforth all watched over his fate.
